IndustrieHansa again supports leukaemia research
José Carreras accepts donation in person

Munich. The Munich-based company IndustrieHansa Engineering & Consulting GmbH presented a donation of EUR 10,000 to the José Carreras International Leukaemia Foundation. "Instead of giving Christmas presents to customers and business associates we are again donating to the fight against leukaemia this year", is how IndustrieHansa CEO René Esser explains the company's action. He is convinced the potential recipients of the Christmas gifts agree with him that the money is better spent on a donation for charitable purposes.

Just before the start of the grand José Carreras Gala, CEO René Esser and Marketing Manager Christian Kullmann handed the donation cheque personally to the world famous tenor and foundation founder José Carreras. José Carreras used the opportunity to expressly thank the companies and customers who were willing to forgo Christmas and thus become co-donors to a good cause. The money donated by IndustrieHansa will go towards scientific research projects concerning the causes of leukaemia and new possible therapies to treat it. It will also be used to set up and maintain parent-child wards.

IndustrieHansa Has been committed to the work of the José Carreras International Leukaemia Foundation for many years and also supports regional aid projects for children.

About IndustrieHansa

IndustrieHansa with its head office in Munich is one of Germany's largest engineering companies, focusing on the automobile and aviation industries, and also on the energy sector. IndustrieHansa was founded in 1977 as a classic service company and over the past 33 years it has developed into an acknowledged supplier of high-quality services along the value chain in the target markets. IndustrieHansa currently employs around 900 highly qualified personnel in the fields of product development and along the production process. The selling points of IndustrieHansa include its sustainable use of the synergies between consulting, training and engineering in order to satisfy the steadily more rigorous customer requirements in matters of quality, flexibility and deadline reliability. In the aviation industry IndustrieHansa can look back over more than 20 years of experience. Here the company belongs to an elite group of suppliers for EADS and Airbus in the field of development and series support for aircraft programmes. IndustrieHansa is also a permanent fixture in the automobile sector: all prominent automobile manufacturers and tier 1 suppliers are its longstanding customers. In the energy technology sector the company works both in the environment of conventional energy generation and in the field of the development and use of renewable energy.
